What are Industry Standards?

Aspiring to perfection is a human endeavour. It requires a commitment from every person in an organisation.

Improvement can be achieved through various mechanisms. Central to these are a number of International Organisation for Standardisation (ISO) protocols (standards) which sets a benchmark for organisations against which they can continuously improve in the search for perfection.

Coupled with committed and above all, competent employees and a management team that cares for these employees' health, safety and well being and the organisation is set to grow to great heights.

Isoglo can assist by implementing and managing any or all of the systems listed here and by ensuring your employees are competent and committed in the execution of their duties.

ISO 9001:2008

Quality in the organisation ensures your success. Get a jump on your competition, implement ISO 9001:2008 now.

ISO 14001

The primary tool to protect the environment in which you operate and on which others rely!

OHSAS 18001

The primary system to help you protect your workers and yourself. Show due diligence, make sure your Health and Safety system stands up in law!

ISO 17025

Do you need a system that will help ensure your laboratory operates according to laid down standards and procedures every time, all the time? Implement ISO 17025 now!

SANS 16000

Don't allow HIV infection to cripple your organisation. SANS 16000 is a system specifically designed to assist you to manage the risk HIV and Aids poses to your organisation.
